

New Park Set To Explore For Uranium

New Park Mining Co. will start exploring for uranium soon in the Marysvale, Piute county, territory, W. H. H. Cranmer, company president and general manager, announced Monday in Salt Lake City.

His announcement came at the annual stockholders meeting in the Newhouse hotel. Company officers and directors were reelected at the session.

Mr. Cranmer disclosed that New Park already has begun preliminary studies in the area. Actual mining operations, which probably will make New Park the second Utah mining company to start prospecting for uranium ore, will start as soon as possible, he said.

Meanwhile, he announced settlement of the long-standing lawsuit between New Park and Park Chief Mining companies over the Levary land group in the Park City district. The land, in dispute for the past several years, will be divided approximately in half between the two companies, Mr. Cranmer said.

Officers and directors reelected include Mr. Cranmer, R. C. Wilson, first vice president and treasurer; Fraser Buck, secretary; Robert L. Cranmer, assistant secretary, and Orvel Bonnet, Provo, James W. Wade and Clark L. Wilson, directors.
